

During the 1880's and the 1890's the town continued to be a center of trade. In 1908 the Cannelton Sewer Pipe Company was incorporated by Henry Clemens. This provided a second major industry for the town. Modest residences were built adjoining the retail center to house the growing number of workers. Many commercial retail buildings were built at this time.

For the next fifty years Cannelton was still a prosperous river town with two large industries, a ferry across the Ohio River and a prosperous downtown area.

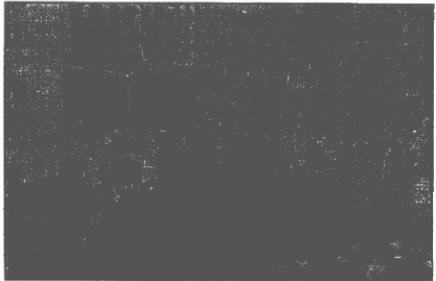

During the last of January and the first part of February, 1937, Cannelton, as well as other cities along the Ohio River were dealt devastating flood damage long to be remembered. Two thirds of Cannelton was flooded. January 24, 1937 was called Black Sunday. Several buildings collapsed and smaller ones floated away.

All citizens were urged to be vaccinated for typhoid fever. After homes and businesses were cleaned, the residents had to obtain a permit from the State Board of Health.

In 1954 the Cannelton Cotton Mill closed, selling its machinery and vacating the building. Many of the older retailers and professionals retired, younger people moved out of town to find employment, and businesses closed. By 1980 many of the downtown buildings were vacant.

Today the Cannelton Historic District is an active functioning town on its way back to prosperity. Cannelton still provides for its residents the classic example of small town life.

Fulton Hill Community Center

A clean, modern building with a 250-person seating capacity and a panoramic view of the Ohio River and Kentucky make Fulton Hill Community Center a favorite Perry County gathering spot.

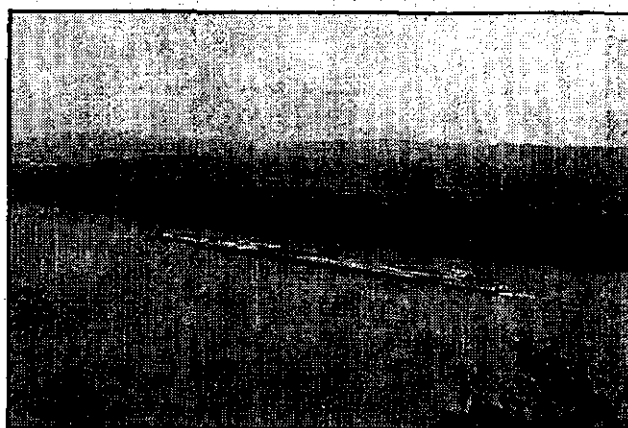

The main level of the building features a large dining room that can be used for wedding receptions, conferences, high-school proms and other events. The upstairs level offers a choice of round or banquet tables. A small serving kitchen is available for use by food preparers.

The lower level of the center includes rooms that can be used for smaller gatherings and meetings. Restrooms are located on both floors.

The center, formerly the site of Camp Koch, was completed in 1996 with a $500,000 grant from the Indiana Department of Commerce, $260,000 in local funds, community donations of financial resources and volunteer labor. The center and adjoining property were purchased by the Lincoln Hills Development Corp. from the Town of Troy in early 2003, with financing provided by Old National Bank.

Fees for using the center are competitive with those of other similar facilities.

Seasonal attractions near the Fulton Hill Community Center include the Troy Pool, open June through August and a shelter house, available for picnics. The beautiful Christ of the Ohio statue is also situated on the grounds, on the bluff overlooking the river.

The Fulton Hill Community Center offers some of the county's most-panoramic views of the Ohio River. The historic Christ of the Ohio statue stands nearby.

For more information or to book an event at the Fulton Hill Community Center, call 547-7777 or 547-3435.

Cannelton Community Center

Since its official opening in February 1998, the new Cannelton Community Center has become a focus of activity in the community — just as its designers intended.

A project that was envisioned for years, the center's gymnasium serves as the home floor for the Cannelton High School Bulldogs basketball and volleyball teams, physical education classes, community meetings and as a walking track for area residents.

Funds to build the community center were provided by a $500,000 Indiana Department of Commerce Community Focus Fund grant, awarded in May 1996.

An equal amount was raised locally through economic development income taxes, a bond issue and donations from individuals and businesses.

Dedicated during the Cannelton Homecoming '97 celebration in August of that year, work on the center progressed through 1997-98. The Bulldogs boys basketball team was able to play their last home game in the new center Feb. 19, 1998, before winning their sectional in March 1998.

A dedicated committee of volunteers helps coordinate activities at the center. For information and scheduling, contact Charles Little at 547-4103.

Troy Community Center

The Troy Community Center in the post office building at Main and Walnut streets serves as a wheelchair-accessible senior center and can seat 80-100 people for parties and receptions.

Kitchen and restroom facilities are available. Troy organizations can use the center for free to conduct meetings, but are asked for a donation if conducting a fund-raiser. Others are charged $40 to cover the cost of utilities.

Users are asked to clean the facility and remove their own trash after their event concludes. Information and reservations may be obtained by calling Irene Roach at 547-4782.

Bristow Community Center

Residents living in or near the community of Bristow boast a large community center, dedicated in August 1997.

The 50-foot by 98-foot center was the effort of numerous volunteers, who donated evenings and entire weekends to its construction. The building seats 300 people comfortably, and replaces the former Bristow Gymnasium, which had previously served as the community's main gathering point.

Financial support in building the center came from donations, most notably from Carl and (the late) Helen Weedman of Mesa, Ariz. Carl Weedman, a Bristow native, and his wife donated $52,000 for the cause. A plaque in the center honors their generosity.

In addition to serving as a home to community celebrations, including the annual fall car show, the center is available for parties, wedding receptions and other gatherings.

Fees are based on the type of event and the time needed. For more information, contact Matt Esarey at 843-5176.

Perry County Rail and Port Services

The Perry County Port Authority-Hoosier Southern Railroad continues to take on an increasing load, moving 105,760 tons of material and 2,802 rail cars in 2003, up from 52,513 tons and 1,279 cars in 1998.

That growth provides evidence for what State Sen. Richard Young called the tremendous foresight of county leaders who worked to upgrade the port-rail agency facilities. He was speaking at a ceremony marking the completion in 2002 of upgrades to the port and the short-line rail system that provide alternative connections between Perry County and the rest of the commercial world.

The Hoosier Southern Railroad's sharp growth has been a constant since rail service was resumed in 1995, moving only eight cars that year on the Lincoln City to the Port of Tell City rail line.

The line extends from the Lincoln City switch yard to the city of Cannelton, 22.3 miles of main track. The agency also operates nearly three miles of spur track, in addition to a one-mile spur to the Waupaca Foundry in the Perry County Industrial Park Riverview. Another spur serves American Colloid and Consolidated Recycling plant at the Tell City Industrial Park in Troy.

The main line from the Santa Claus spur to Cannelton was purchased from the Norfolk Southern Railroad in December 1994 and the balance of the main line into the Lincoln City switch yard was donated to the Hoosier Southern Railroad in September 1996 after agreeing to operate the Rockport rail line on a short-term lease.

The Hoosier Southern Railroad interchanges with the Norfolk Southern Railroad, a Class 1 railroad, at the Lincoln City switch yard. Norfolk Southern Railroad was originally the Southern Railroad.

Tell City Marine Port

The Port of Tell City was the headquarters for barge builder Maxon Marine Industries for many years. Tell City acquired the property in 1996 and the Perry County Port Authority has been operating a barge unloading and rail car loading facility since. The port serves Waupaca Foundry and American Colloid plants with pig iron and coal transportation.

The port authority employs eight full-time employees, who handle railroad and port functions. Richard Neumann serves as the vice president and chief executive officer.

The Perry County Port Authority, along with the Perry County Development Corp. and the Tell City Economic Development Commission, has been aggressively working to attract other new businesses to the operation of the Port of Tell City.

Tell City also coordinates a revolving loan fund to assist new and existing businesses with financing. The goal of all the groups is to improve employment in Perry County.

The 2002 improvements included a $1.2 million port-improvement project and a track and bridge rehabilitation program. Funding was made possible through grants from the U.S. Economic Development Agency, Indiana Department of Transportation and a U.S. Department of Agriculture loan through the Southern Indiana Rural Electric Co-op. Port-authority officials continue to pursue grant funding for ongoing improvements.

Perry County Airport

The Perry County Municipal Airport is in the middle of its second full year of operation since a $1.9 million runway expansion was completed in 2002.

The multi-year effort to lengthen the facility's runway to 4,400 feet and widen it to 75 feet was funded through a number of sources. A Federal Aviation Administration grant provided 80 percent of the cost. Two Build Indiana Fund grants provided $200,000, and another 5 percent of the tab came from state funding. The remaining balance came through local funding.

The improved runway allows the airport to service larger aircraft that formerly had to land at airports in other counties. County officials hope the expanded capabilities to serve aircraft will help in the effort to recruit new businesses to the area. Responsibility for overseeing the airport and its long-range planning falls on the Perry County Airport Authority board. For information about the airport and services, call 836-2697.

Oakwood Health Campus

Tell City's newest health care service, Oakwood Health Campus, opened its doors in 2000 at 1143 23rd St. in Tell City.

Oakwood offers a home-like setting, flexible visiting hours and a committed professional staff.

Several levels of care and services are available, ranging from adult day care and assisted living services to skilled nursing and post-hospital care. Levels also include transitional care, long term care and comprehensive post-acute care.

The campus includes restaurant-style dining, 24 hour on-site nursing, scheduled courtesy transportation, weekly housekeeping and linen service, a full and varied program of activities, assistance with daily living activities, personalized wellness programs and an emergency call system monitored 24 hours a day.

For patients with complex medical conditions, Oakwood's post-acute program includes 24-hour skilled nursing care, oncology management, IV therapy, pulmonary management, vascular and wound management, cardiac recovery and orthopedic and stroke recovery.

A 24-bed, state-of-the-art memory-care unit serves Alzheimer's Disease and dementia patients, giving the facility a 123-bed capacity.

Southern Hills Counseling Center

The primary mental health resource for Perry County is Southern Hills Counseling Center, with offices at 1443 Ninth St. in Tell City. Established in 1968, Southern Hills is a not-for-profit organization.

The staff can provide individual counseling, group therapy, marital and family therapy, psychological testing and evaluation, rehabilitative day treatment and a semi-independent living program to lead clients toward more independent living. Also offered are crisis intervention, geriatric services, in-home and in-school case-management services for children and community consultation and education.

Fees for clinical services are on a sliding scale based on income and number of dependents. Many clients are referred by physicians, clergy, schools, business and industry, social agencies, attorneys and the courts. Self-referrals are also welcome.

Southern Hills maintains a staff of professional therapists, including psychologists, master's degree social workers and board-certified psychiatrists. Call 547-7905 for more information.

The Perry County News

The voice of Perry County for the past 113 years, The Perry County News has served faithfully as the community's newspaper for generations.

The paper was honored in November 2001 by the Hoosier State Press Association with its coveted Blue Ribbon award, recognizing The News as the best overall nondaily newspaper in the state. The newspaper won Best of Show in its class in HSPA's 2002 editorial contest.

Published twice weekly, The Perry County News covers local news, community happenings, school and league sports and social news. Advertisers have the opportunity to promote their products and services on its pages.

The public is encouraged to participate in the compilation of news for the local paper. To report events or suggest news and feature stories, call Editor Vince Luecke, or Managing Editor Kevin Koelling. Working to provide complete and accurate news reporting, both writers cover regular news beats as well as seek out news stories in the community.

Lifestyle Editor Cherie Ramsey welcomes news of personal, school, church, organizational and business events, and happenings such as births, engagements, weddings and anniversaries.

Photos are accepted with most news submissions, and forms are available to help customers provide the most complete information for many types of news. News, sports, obituaries and classifieds are available at the newspaper's Web site, www.perrycountynews.com.

Sports Editor Larry Goffinet reports on a variety of school and league sports in Perry County. All three public school corporations receive complete coverage. Leagues such as horseshoes, bowling, baseball and softball are covered during their seasons as well.

To place advertising in The Perry County News, customers can call Advertising Manager Cindy Dauby, Sales Representative Sara Sommer or Classified Advertising Manager Corliss Krueger. Options for advertisers include full or spot color and designs by the in-house graphic arts department.

Special promotions throughout the year follow the seasons and events of Perry County, including home improvement, estate planning, farming, wedding planning, Schweizer Fest, graduation, Discover Perry County and more. A quarterly magazine, Neighbors, was launched in the summer of 2002.

Classified Advertising Manager Corliss Krueger can help you with reader classified advertisements as well as real estate and auction listings.

If you need a subscription to The Perry County News, Circulation Manager Joyce Dauby will assist you in setting up mail delivery. Through the national Newspapers in Education program, she also arranges sponsored subscriptions for classrooms in area schools.

News Publishing Co. also meets the offset press printing needs of several customers from southern Indiana and central Kentucky. Teresa Rice has been publisher of The News since 2002.

The Perry County News is a holding of Landmark Community Newspapers Inc. of Shelbyville, Ky. For more information on The Perry County News, call 347-3424, e-mail to pcnews@psci.net or write to The Perry County News, P.O. Box 309, Tell City, IN 47586. # Public Schools

→ Cannelton City Schools

Administration: Superintendent John Godare

Enrollment 2003-04: 300

Number of teachers: 24

Percentage of teachers with master's degree: 75 percent

Curriculum: Comprehensive general, college-preparatory, cooperative vocational and special education.

Cannelton has a junior-senior high school and an elementary school, each administered by a principal.

With a long and proud educational tradition, Cannelton High School traces its history back more than a century. The elementary is located in two facilities. The St. Michael Building is leased from St. Michael Catholic Church and holds classes for kindergarten through second grade.

The Myers Building, which celebrated its 135th anniversary with renovations completed in November, houses grades three through six and is the oldest continuously-operated school in the nation. As of this writing, city education officials were eyeing a former bank building in town as a potential middle school.

Grant funding has provided opportunities for a renaissance for Cannelton City Schools. Just short of $1 million was spent for renovations of restrooms, handicapped facilities, new roofs, doors and windows.

Enrollment 2003-04: 1,183

Number of teachers: 70

Percentage of teachers with master's degree: 76 percent

Perry Central's elementary, junior high and senior high schools are housed under one roof on a 53-acre campus near Leopold off of Indiana 37.

Curriculum: Perry Central offers comprehensive programs for preschool through high-school pupils. Students may opt for a general path of study, an academic lane or they may pursue an Indiana Academic Honors Diploma.

Additionally, a wide range of electives is available, including industrial technology, agriculture, business, home economics, foreign languages, art and music. Many classes are technology-based with a major emphasis placed on use of technology.

Perry County's three public school systems excel at preparing young people, including this Perry Central senior, to succeed in college, vocational programs and the work force.

Perry Central also participates in the Perry County Area Vocational Cooperative through which juniors and seniors may leave campus and take vocational classes at other county high schools.

Perry Central strives to serve as a community center for a variety of activities, including adult education, family literacy, English as a second language, continuing education, family-outreach events and preschool. Health screenings, Ivy Tech classes and counseling are conducted on-site. These activities are possible through a variety of grants and community collaborations.

Students also have access to excellent outdoor athletic facilities, including a football stadium, practice football field, softball field, baseball field, all-weather track, dressing rooms, restrooms, concession stand and Little League field.

In 1999 Perry Central completed a $7 million construction and renovation project that included new and renovated elementary classrooms, a new elementary office and library, a new gymnasium-cafeteria area, 10 additional high-school classrooms, renovation of high-school science rooms and a new industrial-arts building.

Tell City-Troy Township Schools

Administration: Superintendent Larry Phillips

Enrollment 2003-04: 1,625

Number of teachers: 110

Curriculum: As Perry County's largest school system, students in the Tell City-Troy Township School Corp. continue to have access to the latest in technology, including distance learning equipment, to complement a comprehensive general education curriculum.

Special emphasis is placed upon language arts, math and science. The vocational school offers students in their junior and senior years the opportunity to study heating and air-conditioning, automotive, building trades, health occupations, consumer homemaking and business.

Adult education is also provided through evening courses, giving local residents opportunities to obtain general-education diplomas.

The school corporation has a high school, junior-high school and an elementary school. Tell City High School was constructed in 1928, while Tell City Junior High School was built in 1980.

William Tell Elementary School, located off Tell and 31st streets near Ivy Tech State College on the city's east side, was completed in 1999.

Schergens Center

A thriving community and learning hub for Tell City and Perry County, the Schergens Center was the vision of the late Lucile Schergens, who co-owned The Perry County News with her husband, Edgar.

Located on 31st Street near William Tell Elementary School, the center contains a large gymnasium, meeting rooms and offices. Meeting rooms can accommodate up to 75 people and can be rented for small parties, showers and civic meetings. Audio- and visual-presentation equipment and screens are available for business presentations.

The open gymnasium seats 350-plus people and is available for larger meetings and receptions. The air-conditioned building offers large clean restrooms, a modern kitchen and ample parking.

The Schergens Center is home to the Perry County Learning Academy, an alternative school that opened in 2003 to assist young adults in obtaining their high-school diplomas. Getting started in 2004 was the Community Learning Center of Perry County, which operates through Indiana State University and the South Central Educational Association. The center is equipped with distance-learning technology that allows local residents to pursue college courses without leaving their home community.

Approximately 1,000 square feet of the upstairs portion of the building is leased to Perry Spencer Step Ahead. Two rooms on the main floor are leased to Rainbow Cottage, which provides latchkey services to youngsters through fifth grade.

Reservations are handled through the Tell City Mayor's office at City Hall. More information can be obtained by calling 547-5511.

Ivy Tech State College

Ivy Tech State College — Southwest, which includes the Tell City Center, has a vision to "serve southwestern Indiana as provider of choice in work-force education and lifelong learning."

With educational opportunities for Perry County area residents that include degree programs, transfer options and even classes for senior citizens, Ivy Tech is working hard to reach that vision.

At the Tell City Center, students can earn an associate degree in business administration or office administration. Those interested in more vocational training can earn a technical certificate in welding or industrial maintenance.

Technology is also increasing the number of courses offered to area residents through Ivy Tech's distance education classes. Students can sit in the Tell City Center's classrooms and be connected by video directly into Evansville classes. For students versed in use of the Internet, Ivy Tech also offers Internet classes that allow students to work from their home or office.

Ivy Tech partners with Vincennes University through the Community College of Indiana system. That partnership gives area residents the option to transfer credits earned at Ivy Tech Tell City to the University of Southern Indiana and other state universities. Area high school students can also earn Ivy Tech college credits through select dual credit offerings with high schools.

Site director Phil Hesson has led the Tell City Center for 10 years. During that time, the center has increased its identity as both an educational provider and community supporter.

The center offers apprenticeship training classes and the popular "Senior Scholars" classes for retired Indiana residents age 60 and over. For more information, call 547-7915.

St. Meinrad School of Theology

Located just across the Perry County line in Spencer County, Saint Meinrad School of Theology trains men for priesthood and offers lay-ministry courses. The Benedictine monastery also hosts religious and cultural events through the year. For more information, call (812) 357-6611.

Enhanced 911

Perry County's Enhanced 911 system went on-line in 1995, but continues to grow and better serve the community.

Residents have access to emergency response teams such as the fire department, paramedics and police by dialing 911. All agencies are dispatched through a central location at the Tell City Police Department.

Enhanced 911 is available to every home, business or other location that has a telephone in Perry County. Calls from the St. Meinrad area (St. Meinrad is in Spencer County but several St. Meinrad area addresses are located in Perry County) are also dispatched through Tell City.

St. Meinrad volunteer firefighters who are first responders are frequently summoned into northern Perry County to provide medical assistance until paramedics arrive.

Calls to the 911 dispatcher should be limited to emergencies such as accidents, fires, serious injury or illness, or crimes in progress that require immediate attention. Non-emergency calls can be made to the dispatcher at 547-7068.

The dispatcher has access to information about each telephone location to assist in giving directions. A mapping system automatically pinpoints the address of the caller on a computerized map, making it easier for emergency personnel to find the location quickly.

The E-911 program is coordinated by Steve Hauser.

Fire Protection

Tell City's Peter Pirsch engine was entered in Troy's bicentennial parade last October. Many departments have preserved their antique firefighting equipment.

Eight volunteer fire departments serve Perry County. All phones in Perry County are connected with the Enhanced 911 system. A dispatcher will contact the fire department when dialed.

Tell City Fire Department

Tell City has two fire stations, located at 711 Humboldt and 12th and Mozart streets. The department serves the city and an area approximately one mile outside the city limits. Dennis Kessans is the chief and Dennis Howard is assistant chief.

Cannelton Fire Department

The department serves all of Cannelton and parts of Troy and Tobin townships. Chris Herzog is the chief and Kevin Lawalin is the assistant chief.

Central Perry Fire Department

The Central Perry Fire Department has a station in Leopold and a substation in Derby. The department serves residents in Oil, Leopold and Union townships, and parts of Clark and Tobin townships.

The chief is David Edwards. Kevin Etienne is the assistant chief for the Leopold area and Tom Hauser is the assistant for the Derby area.

Anderson Township Fire Department

The department has fire stations in St. Marks and Bristow. The department serves residents in Anderson and parts of Oil, Clark and Troy townships. The chief is John Taylor and Duane Goffinet is the assistant chief in St. Marks. In Bristow, Darrell Taylor is the first assistant chief and Randy Kleaving the second assistant.

Rome Fire Department

The department is located one mile west of Rome on Indiana 66 and serves parts of Tobin Township. James H. Miller is the chief and Barry Whitehead is the assistant chief.

Troy Fire Department

The department is located at Walnut and Harrison streets and serves the Troy area. Bernard "Pudder" Linne is the chief; Mike Wedding is assistant chief.

St. Meinrad Fire Department

The department is located on Indiana 545 below the St. Meinrad Archabbey and serves residents in parts of Clark Township in Perry County.

The chief of the town department is Tom Kloeck and Ray Vaal is assistant chief. The abbey department's chief is Brother Benjamin Brown OSB. His assistant is Brother Giles Mahieu OSB.

Abbey and town firefighters have served together on the department for many years.

New Boston Fire Department

The department serves some residents of Anderson Township, along with Huff Township in Spencer County. Kenny Hedinger serves as fire chief.

Animal Control

Two separate nonprofit organizations — the Perry County Animal Shelter Inc. and the Humane Society of Perry County — work to help area people turn would-be stray dogs and cats into adoptable pets.

The former was working as this edition of Discover went to press to raise $190,000 to build a 4,420-square-foot facility to replace a shelter on Sycamore Road that has proven itself inadequate for the county's needs.

The group also wants to promote education and cruelty-prevention programs, and help reduce the population of unwanted pets. They also hoped to work with county leaders to name an animal-control officer who can investigate animal-cruelty claims and take custody of at-risk animals.

The Humane Society of Perry County provides assistance for residents who need help in spaying or neutering their pets, obtaining doghouses or coping with pet illnesses. For more information on its activities or to request assistance, call 547-3265.

Pet regulations in Tell City and Cannelton require dogs to be kept on leashes and all dogs in the county are to be licensed yearly. The county has a one-bite law, which means if an animal bites a human one time, it must be removed or destroyed.
